ECHO'S FROM THE FAIR

With the Most Exciting Races of the Season the Fair Closed

THE FREE FOR ALL

Was Won by "Minnie Tillon" a Beautiful Black Mare Owned by J. A. Seager of Bath N. Y. "Dan Wood" of Indiana Pa. Took Second Money.

A RIGHT SMART CROWD THERE FRIDAY

On Wednesday morning a heavy mist filled the air but by 8 o'clock the sun came out bright and warm proclaiming that the weather for the day would be pretty. From early morning until long afternoon conveyances of all kinds began bringing the country folks to the Great Centre County Fair. Every train that arrived in town was crowded. By the time the races began in the afternoon fully four thousand people had assembled on the grounds.

The doing away with the "tough joints" and "fakers" seems to be working to a charm and really one does not miss seeing them and no doubt a great many people have saved their good elegant coin by them not being here.

Every amusement on the Grounds was patronized and the proprietors felt perfectly satisfied with their first day's business at the fair. On the Midway could be seen almost everything imaginable in the way of amusements. "The flegged calf," "The performing bear and kangaroo," "The trained monkeys and dogs," and many others to numerous to mention.

The agricultural part of the fair was much better than before. Farming implements of all descriptions were on exhibition and many were being operated by gasoline engines the same that are being used by a great many of our country friends all over the country.

Perhaps what drew so large a crowd on Wednesday was, that every child under fifteen years of age was admitted free of charge, and my oh my you should have seen the bunch of them there, and they certainly did enjoy the whole show.

The feature of the day was the horse racing. Great crowds attended this part of the fair. In the 2:15 pace and trot class "Minnie Tillon" won three straight heats and took first money the time was 2:15, "Dan Wood" took second money and "Sally Derby" third money. In the 2:35 pace and trot class, "Hot Stuff" reduced the record to 2:22 and won first money, "All D." second money, "The Judge" third money and "Elk Land" fourth money.

THURSDAY.

Thursday drew the largest crowd ever at a Centre County Fair. It is said 15,000 people were on the grounds and it really seemed like it, for you could hardly take a step without stepping into someone. Every train that arrived in the town brought hundreds of people and all day long the roads leading into Bellefonte from the surrounding country could be seen a continual line of rigs of all description.

With all the crowd we entertained on Thursday we only heard of one accident and that was a young lady who was riding on the merry-go-round. She took sick, fainted and fell off while the machinery was in full motion. She was picked up by friends and taken to the Bellefonte hospital where it was found that she was not seriously injured.

When nearly everyone had left the grounds Thursday evening a slight occurred that should be investigated by the association. A young man from State College was knocked down by a fellow from around our town and almost killed after he had knocked him senseless he jumped on his face and began kicking. If it had not been for some strangers standing near, the State College lad might have been killed.

The drawing card of the whole Fair was the music. People from all over the county have read of the renowned Repasz Band of Williamsport and were very anxious to hear them play. Around the platform where the band men sat, thousands of people stood for hours to hear them and after every rendition they would applaud and cheer. The concert given in front of the Brockerhoff House and Bush House were greatly appreciated as the streets were crowded for a block and a half with an enthusiastic audience. We feel sure it paid the association to have this musical organization with us this year as they certainly did their share in drawing the crowds.

The racing on Thursday was much better than on Wednesday and it was the hardest kind of work on the part of the policemen to keep the crowds from in front of the horses.

The races were as follows:
2:15 trot and pace—purse $250.
Jennie Direct, Harry M. Carlisle, 1 1 1

FRIDAY.

With a light rain falling during the early morning hours and an ugly cold wind blowing, you would have thought the last day of the Great Centre County Fair would be a failure. But it was predicted weeks ago that the week of the fair we would have pretty weather, so about ten o'clock it ceased raining and a good strong wind was blowing and every once and a while Old Sam would peep out from behind the clouds and before long the grounds were in splendid condition and the track was perfect for racing. The morning trains brought large crowds again and by the time the races started in the afternoon nearly 5000 people had assembled on the grounds.

The Great Free For All was the most exciting of all the races during the week and was won by "Minnie Tillon" who had sort of won the hearts of the Bellefonte people by her past record. In the 2:20 Trot and Pace, "Sandy Hornet" driven by Mr. Harry Carlisle won first money. In this race, "Tom S" driven by "old whippers", took second money "Billy C." of Altoona third money and "Majoretta" Gray's bay mare fourth money.

The races were as follows:

We are very sorry to learn that several people who attended the Fair on Thursday had the misfortune of having their pocket books taken from them by a gang of pick pockets who undoubtedly infested the town on that day. We assure the unfortunate parties that everything possible will be done to run these culprits down. The police of Bellefonte and other officials are working earnestly on the matter and will do all in their power to have these men arrested. It is said the police have a clue and that several women are interested in the robbery. The following is a clipping from the Lock Haven Democrat.

W. Albert Dugan, superintendent of the clay mines of Pennsylvania Fire Brick company, was robbed of $600 while getting on the Bald Eagle valley train leaving Bellefonte about 8:15 Thursday night after attending the Bellefonte fair. There was a rush at the station and while going up the steps of the car with everybody shoving. Mr. Dugan felt a hand at his hip pocket and grabbed for it and did catch the pick-pocket's hand but the fellow wrenched the hold loose and dived down the steps on the other side, where there was no one and escape in the darkness was easy. This is the first time Mr. Dugan has ever had any money stolen from him although he generally carries on his person large sums of money, more than he had taken from him on Thursday.

Undertaker N. H. Johnson, of Blanchard, lost his pocket book containing sixteen dollars and several checks. He has stopped payment on the checks. Frank Bowers, of this place had his pocket picked of three dollars. A brother of B. E. Thompson, on his way from State College to this place, had the game tried on him while in Bellefonte but did not lose anything.

WMSPORT 6 ACADEMY 5

TYPICAL FOOT BALL DAY

The Academy Went Down to Defeat With Colors Flying. They Played a Splendid Game But Could Not Win.

BOTH TEAMS FOUGHT DESPERATELY.

The Academy foot ball team after passing through two hard contests without being defeated had hard luck Saturday and lost to the fast Williamsport High School team by the very close score of 5-6. A little better judgement displayed in deciding the time for the halves might have resulted in a more satisfactory score for the Academy, for at the close of the second half the home boys were tearing through Williamsport at a rapid rate and with a few minutes extra to play might have made another touchdown. No 20 minute halves for the rest of the season should be played. It makes the game too short for the spectators and hardly gives the team that is scored on first, enough time to redeem help when playing with opponents who are an equal match for them. In the first half through a fumble of a punt the visitors were enabled to get possession of the ball near the Academy's goal and then rushed it over for a touchdown, Kiley making the score and Painter kicking the goal successfully. The Academy boys warmed up to the needs of the hour and struggled hard to score in that half but failed. In the second half after several successful plays Pantall punted the ball far over the heads of the Williamsport backs who in their effort to secure it fumbled badly. Clyde Oberlin falling on the ball for a touchdown. Right here the game was lost, for Pantall had kicked the goal the score would have been a tie of 6-6.

Both teams fought desperately for victory during the remainder of the game indulging in spectacular end runs, forward passes delayed passes line rushes and punting, but the time was too short the Academy to score again and the visitors remained victors by the score of 6-5. Lyon, Oberlin, Smith, Elsey and Davis did great work for Bellefonte.

The Academy hopes to redeem itself at Williamsport on Thanksgiving Day. Friday afternoon at 3:45 Dickinson Seminary plays the Academy at the Meadow. It will be a good game. The line up Saturday was as follows:

Williamsport.	Positions	Bellefonte
Painter	Left End	Elsey
Lynn	Left Tackle	Ferguson
Cornwall	Left Guard	Louden
Weiss	Centre	Wagner
Cawley	Right Guard	Millen
Miller	Right Tackle	Elliot
Croughlin	Right End, Pantall (Capt)
Updegraff	Quarter-Back	Davis
Carter	Left Half-Back	Lyon
Heeninger	Right Hand-Back	Oberlin
Kiley	Full Back	Smith
Referee—Moser, of State. Umpire—Hartman, of Williamsport. Touchdowns—Kiley, Oberlin. Goal—Painter. Time of halves—25 and 20 minutes.

Coming to Baltimore in 1904, he won a three year's scholarship in organ, harmony and composition at the Peabody Conservatory. In 1906 he received the teacher's certificate and in 1907 the diploma in organ and supplementary studies at the Peabody. THE GREAT-ARMY OF MEN.

Laid a Railroad and Put in a Bridge in one day.

Wednesday morning a train of about forty cars pulled by two large locomotives arrived in Bellefonte over the Pennsylvania railroad, on the train were from 300 to 400 men which had been gathered up along the way. A strange thing about it was that the men didn't know where they were or what they were to do until they arrived here and were put to work to build a new railroad from a point on the L. & T. railroad, near what is known as Reynolds' Mill, to the Nittany Furnace. This train also contained everything necessary to build a railroad, such as steel rails, railroad ties and lumber to build bridges. As soon as it became known that this army of men were at work there was considerable excitement in Bellefonte, and hundreds of people visited the busy and active scene. It was a curiosity to see these men at work, wading through a cinder pile which is ten to fifteen feet deep at some places, and did it in such a short time. Everything moved like clockwork.

Since 1899 there has been a legal question as to whether the track in the yard at Nittany Furnace belonged to the Furnace Company or to the Nittany Valley Railroad Company. In the same year the Nittany Valley Railroad Company filed a bill of ejectment against the Furnace Co., to restrain the Pennsylvania railroad Co., from using the track inside the yard. M. I. Gardner, has been acting in the capacity of superintendent of the Nittany Valley Railroad, and since that time he has been charging the Furnace Co., 10 cents a ton for everything that passed over this section of the road which up to this time, amounts to thousands of dollars and which the Furnace Co. has refused to pay, owing to the fact that they claimed the piece of road in dispute. In 1906 the case was tried in Bellefonte before Judge McClure, of Lewisburg, who, on the 31st of July of that year, filed a decree in favor of the Nittany Railroad Co. It was afterwards taken to the highest court which confirmed the lower court. In the face of these rulings the Furnace Co., continued to use the track and refused to pay the tonnage. The result was that Mr. Gardner received instructions from headquarters to lock the switches and lock their engines, used by the Nittany Furnace Co. in the road house on the side of the hill. These instructions were carried out on Tuesday, the result of which was that nothing could be taken to or from the furnace, and unless something was done quickly the furnace would have to be banked and a large number of people thrown out of employment. The Furnace Company notified the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., of their predicament and the above is the result.

Judge Lyle, the attorney for the Nittany Valley Railroad Co., placed an injunction in the hands of Sheriff Kline to restrain the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., from proceeding to lay the track, but the Sheriff refused to serve the injunction and thus the men are still at work, making rapid progress. It is now a question what legal steps will be taken next. If the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is allowed to let their track remain the Nittany Railroad will be little or no use.

Don't Crowd the Sidewalks.

In some comments on the manner in which merchants and dealers in various commodities in cities often obstruct the sidewalks for the display of their goods, the McKeesport Daily News says: "In all fairness to other people business men in this city should be careful how they take up the space on the sidewalks with their advertisements, sign boards, produce displays and other obstructions of a similar nature. There is a law prohibiting such encroachments on the public highway but it is not enforced, and the only hope now, entertained for the people is that sound judgement and fairness of the business men will render the proper solution of the problem."

Rev. Edwin Richardson.

On Monday Rev. Edwin Richardson the dearly beloved rector of the St. John's Episcopal church of this place left Bellefonte for Baltimore, where he will visit a few days before leaving on his trip abroad. Rev. Richardson is suffering from an attack of nervous prostration and his entire system is fearfully wrecked. It was necessary for Mr. Russell Blair to accompany the Reverend gentleman to Baltimore where he will be joined by his relatives who will look after him. We sincerely hope Mr. Richardson will regain his health and strength and that some day he will return to Bellefonte.

SIXTEEN PEOPLE KILLED

The Train Jumped the Track at a Sharp Curve

VICTIMS BADLY BURNED

Of Sixteen who Met a Quick Death Ten Were Passengers—Many Others Received Injuries.

ACCIDENT OCCURRED AT STATION

Shrewsbury, England, October 15.—A train made up of passenger coaches bound from Scotland and many parts of England to Bristol, left the rails as it was entering the station here at an early hour this morning. Sixteen persons including ten passengers were killed and many injured.

The London and Northwestern Railroad, on which the train was running, curves sharply as it nears Shrewsbury, and there is a standing order that the engineers must not exceed a speed of ten miles an hour at that point. Disregard of the order is believed to be the cause of the accident.

The engine and the cars, with the exception of the last one, left the rail, and when the officials from the railroad station reached the spot the cars were a mass of wreckage beneath which were bodies of the dead and injured.

Fortunately the wreck did not catch fire and the doctors and salvage crews who soon reached the scene did not have this added danger to fight in the darkness and pouring rain, which, however, retarded the rescue, and several hours elapsed before the last body was taken out.

The killed included the engineer and fireman and the guards and postal clerks who were in the mail car, immediately behind the tender of the engine.

THE MACCABEES PROGRESSING

Promises to be one the Principal Organizations of the Town.

The Bees of the Knights of the Maccabees has certainly been busy this summer and fall as they are again making the giant strides that characterized their organization a year ago.

They have leased the old Odd Fellows Hall in the McClain Block, opposite the Bush House and expect to occupy it in November it is being very prettily fitted up with a handsome paper gold fleur de lis with green felt canopy top ceiling the woodwork stained walnut. The room is finely equipped with a raised dias at either end surmounted with the proper officers desks and a raised platform surrounds the whole room allowing a free floor space. Connected with the commodious lodge room is a fine paraphelia closet and two large ante rooms which will give the organization about as complete lodge rooms as any in the County. A large hall adjoins these rooms which at some future day they also expect to lease and equip for a Banquet Hall and Reception Room.

There are several other organizations already asking about quarters there so that may soon become a hive of fraternal organizations which would be appropriate to the Maccabees. The Hall will be christened Maccabee Hall and known as that hereafter. Applications for membership are coming in rapidly from all quarters and many of the old members who allowed themselves to drop out are petitioning to get back a reduced initiation fee, having been made good to Jan., 1st 1908.

Another Fiendish Treatment of an Animal.

A little commotion occurred Friday morning in front of "the Racket Store," when a report came to an agent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to animals. That a horse had been standing about 15 hours without food or water. A representative of a Phila. Society was on the spot and ordered the animal removed to a livery and given proper care. It was evident the owner of the horse was overcome with weakness of the brain and for his folly, an innocent animal must suffer. How long? Oh how long will this cruelty be permitted.

ENTERED INTO REST

B. Frank Thompson of Beech Creek Passed Into the Great Beyond.

We feel very sorry indeed to announce that B. Frank Thompson, at one time a very prominent citizen of Centre County died at his home at Beech Creek on Friday morning, the cause of his death resulting from a severe attack of typhoid fever which he had over a year ago.

Mr. Thompson was an honest, honorable farmer and when he lived at his old home up Buffalo Run Valley he was respected by every one who knew him. Then he went to Beech Creek took charge of the creamery, this business he carried on successfully for several years. He afterwards embarked in the mercantile business and in this he was also successful. In church affairs Mr. Thompson was very prominent and always took an earnest, active part in every department of the church work. For many years he was an elder in the Lockport Presbyterian church at Jacksonville. When he moved to Beech Creek he became prominently connected with the Presbyterian church at that place.

We have had the pleasure to visit the Thompson home in days gone by, and always found the true christian love and fellowship of God abiding therein. He will be greatly missed in the home and we sincerely extend our heartfelt sympathy to his loving wife and two sons Guy and Allen.

Mr. Thompson was about 57 years of age and was married to Miss Mary Hughes of Buffalo Run Valley.

On Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock all that was mortal of Benjamin Franklin Thompson was laid away in the little cemetery on the side hill near the Presbyterian church at Jacksonville. His body rests in a grave just outside the house of worship he loved to attend, where for many years his familiar figure was seen going in and out, whose christian life filled with kindness and love for his fellowmen was manifested. He is at rest today beside those of his kin who entered the portals of Glory in years past by.

Services which were conducted by Rev. William Laurie D. D. were very sad and impressive. His text was taken from the 16th chapter of Luke 22 verse. The singing by the church choir was very pretty and touching. A beautiful duet was sung by Messrs. E. R. Reed and P. T. Trexler of Beech Creek entitled "No tears in Yonder Home."

The casket bearers were the following gentlemen, Captain James A. Quigley, George F. Hess, Philip Helner, Irwin Clark, John P. Wynn and Harry Fearan.

A PRETTY HOME WEDDING.

Miss Pearl Powers Becomes the Wife of Mr. Brinton Wallace.

On Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock Miss Pearl Powers daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Powers was united in marriage to Mr. Brinton Wallace of Milesburg. Rev. Ambrose Schmidt of the St. John's Reformed church said the words that bound these young lives together. The wedding was a quiet home affair and only the immediate friends of the happy couple were present.

After the marriage vows had been spoken a reception was held. The bride and groom were attended by Miss Ada Powers as bridesmaid and Mr. John Blackwell of Williamsport as best man. The bridal party left on the evening train for Washington, D. C., Atlantic City and the Jamestown Exposition. After their wedding tour through the South they will return to Bellefonte where they will make their future home.

The bride is a splendid young lady thoroughly accomplished in the duties of making a happy home. She has always been closely associated with her mother in performing the household affairs and for these reasons we know she will make a good wife.

Mr. Wallace is a brick layer by trade and is a sober, industrious young man who has hosts of friends both in Bellefonte and Milesburg. The Republican joins in with their many friends in wishing them a happy successful voyage through life, and may a shadow never cross their pathway.

On a Hunting Trip.

Register and Recorder W. A. Snyder of Salona and C. O. Dunlap of Lock Haven, were in Bellefonte Thursday, and took in the sights at the Centre county fair. From there they left for Laurelton Union county, where they will spend several days in the mountains in that district in quest of pheasants and squirrels.

DANGER SIGNALS UP

Manufacturers Send Warning to Pennsylvania Republicans.

FEAR OF TARIFF TINKERING

Capital and Labor Seriously Concerned Over Agitation of "Iowa Idea" of Revision in the Stronghold of Protection.

[Special Correspondence.]

Philadelphia, Oct. 8.

A committee of manufacturers of this city has started a movement to impress upon the citizens of Pennsylvania their direct and vital interest in the maintenance of the protective tariff policy of the national government.

Following up the formal action taken at a recent meeting of the Manufacturers' club, when vigorous resolutions were adopted in opposition to any "tinkering with the tariff," influential men, prominently identified with the industrial interests of this state, have inaugurated an educational agitation to awaken the voters of Pennsylvania to the danger confronting them from the development of sentiment in the west and elsewhere, in favor of a revision of the tariff.

The assistance of Chairman Wesley R. Andrews and his colleagues of the Republican State committee, has been sought to further the campaign for a "stand pat" policy on the tariff issue.

Manufacturers Are Alarmed.

The manufacturers admit that they are concerned over the persistence of the tariff revisionists, and they look to Pennsylvania Republicans to come to the front, as they have done in the past, and emphasize their continued fealty to the principles of a protective tariff.

The tariff revisionists have been sending tons of literature into Pennsylvania for the purpose of breaking the lines of the protective tariff Republicans, and they have been banking upon cutting down the vote of the Republican state ticket at the coming election and thus weaken the voice of the state in the councils of the Republican party of the nation.

The enemies of protection are making a great play to have delegates elected to the coming Republican National convention who will favor the insertion of a plank in the platform calling for a revision of the tariff.

The manufacturers who have started in to combat this proposition realize the gravity of the situation and look to Pennsylvania to block the game of the revisionists.

Chairman Andrews' Call to Action. After a conference with some of the leading manufacturers interested in the movement, which means so much to the industrial and business interests of this state, Colonel Andrews today said:

"Pennsylvania's industries are endangered by the agitation for a revision of the tariff, and none can appreciate what I say better than those who have their capital invested and who depend upon the protective tariff to shield them from ruinous competition from the products of the poorly paid labor of foreign countries.

"There must be no tinkering with the tariff, either before or after the presidential election, and Republicans of Pennsylvania must be alive to the situation. If any move shall be made to change existing tariff schedules, even in the slightest degree, it will inaugurate a period of doubt and uncertainty which would be reflected in the utter demoralization of Pennsylvania's manufacturing interests, and there could be but one result, a condition that would bear heavily upon the farmers and wage workers of our commonwealth, and seriously embarrass the capital employed in vast fields of commercial activity.

"Pennsylvania will not lose an opportunity at the coming election to proclaim to the other states in the Union that she has no sympathy with the 'Iowa idea' for a scaling down of the tariff.

"In no more effective and solemn manner can the Republicans of Pennsylvania meet this issue than by registering at the November election their emphatic decree that by no act of theirs shall the bars be let down which now exclude foreign competition with American labor.

"The contest this fall is but the skirmish of the great presidential battle of next year.

"If Pennsylvania shall roll up a pronounced majority for the cause of Republicanism in November, the state will continue to wield a potent influence in the national councils of the party.

"If, as the result of indifference and of paying heed to the shallow and sensational charges of the opposition, the Democratic candidate for state treasurer should be elected, of which, in my judgment, there is not the remotest chance if Republicans perform their full measure of duty, the shout would go up all over the land that the Republicans of Pennsylvania were indifferent as to the continuance of the tariff, and, thereby greatly weaken the influence of the Republicans of Pennsylvania in the next Republican national convention.

Necessity For Action.

The consequence of such a state of affairs would be illustrated by a cessation of all industrial enterprises within our borders, with the inevitable result that the workingman and the farmer would in the end bear the brunt of the disaster.

"Face to face with these conditions and with the full knowledge as to the embarrassments that would follow, all Republicans are appealed to as members of the great party of protection and prosperity to recognize the necessity for earnest, active, and patriotic work in order not only to bury the opposition beyond the hope of resurrection, but to strengthen the position of our great state at next year's Republican national convention in the battle that must inevitably be fought there for the preservation of the protective policies which have made Pennsylvania the keystone of the industrial arch of the federal union. None should be deceived by those who affect not to see disaster in Republican indifference, but all should go to work at once with a will to discharge their full measure of duty.

"Every Republican committeeman should work to circumvent the designs of the Democrats to obtain possession of the state treasury, which, by the way, they will attempt to accomplish by the circulation of false statements and by aspersions upon the honesty of the Republicans of Pennsylvania. Their unsavory methods should inspire every Republican heart with the resolve to defeat their machinations by vigorously supporting the Republican candidate for state treasurer, Hon. John O. Sheatz, whose name is a synonym for integrity, and who enjoys to the fullest extent the confidence of the party from one end of the state to the other.

"In consideration of the approach of an important presidential campaign," said Chairman Andrews, "Republicans of Pennsylvania should set the pace by rolling up a large majority at next November's election to accentuate their fealty to the principles of the Republican party and their adherence to the policy of leaving well enough alone, a matter of vital importance to the manufacturers, farmers and wage earners of Pennsylvania, and also to emphasize their approval of the progressive policies of the national administration."

The Razor in Disrepute.

"And he told her all his heart, and said unto her, there hath not come a razor upon mine head, for I have been a Nazirite unto God from my mother's womb; if I be shaven, then my strength will go from me, and I shall become weak and be like other men."—Judges xvi, 17.

Hair on man or brute is a sign of strength. He who desires to keep at a safe distance from dentists, let him keep also at a great distance from the knife of the barber. To shave is an act against nature. Provoke nature, and in return nature will provoke you.

Said Daniel Webster:—"the razor! It has taught me to curse. It has cost me more time and more trouble than all my speeches."

Rufus Choate, the lawyer, called the razor an instrument invented by Lucifer to fill up hell with barristers.

Edward Everett never used profane language, but before shaving he would invariably give vent to all sorts of French barbarisms.

Jordan Water.

There is a general impression that the Jordan water which is used at royal baptisms is taken from the sacred stream, put into a bottle, hermetically sealed and left untouched until the bottle is opened by the officiating priest. As a matter of fact, the water which flows out of the lake of Galilee and descends a rocky gorge to a level far below that of the Mediterranean is full of organic substances. If a bottle be filled with the water and kept tightly corked for a few days it turns perfectly black and offers to the nostrils all the odors of the tropics. The precaution is therefore taken of boiling the water and straining it before it is sealed up, and this is why the baptismal water always possesses the crystal clearness which one notices on these ceremonial occasions.—Modern Society.

The Undertaker's Shop.

"The one thing in New York that I can't get used to," said the country visitor, "is the manifold uses to which undertakers put their shops. I used to be of the opinion that the only possible errand a person could have at an undertaker's was to purchase funeral supplies, but in this town I find that people go there for all sorts of purposes. They go to vote, to get married and to transact all the legal business that a notary public is capable of transacting. Yesterday I even saw a party eating luncheon in an undertaker's establishment. They had come into town apparently to attend a funeral and instead of patronizing a restaurant they calmly nunched their midday meal in the midst of those lugubrious surroundings."—New York Globe.

A Curious Superstition.

Among the superstitions of the Seneca Indians was this most beautiful one: When a young maiden died they imprisoned a young bird until it first began to try its powers of song, and then, loading it with caresses and messages, they loosed its bonds over her grave in the belief that it would fold its wings nor close its eyes until it had flown to the spirit land and delivered its precious burden of affection to the loved and lost one.

Sandy's Criticism.

A young Scotchman went to a London school of music, where he learned to play the violoncello fairly well. On his return to his native village he gathered his friends together to hear his new instrument. When he had played one or two tunes, he looked up expectantly. After a slight pause his old grandfather spoke.

"Eh, myun," he said, "it's a maircy there's na smell wi' it!"—Liverpool Mercury.

"SCAN MY RECORD"

So Says Nominee Sheatz to Voters of Pennsylvania.

HE IS A CANDIDATE

Republican Choice For State Treasurer Takes People of the State into His Confidence and Expects His Case Will Win Them.

[Special Correspondence.]

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 8.

John O. Sheatz, Republican nominee for state treasurer, is making a personal canvass of the state, and wherever he goes he is received with enthusiasm and there is reason to believe he will be elected by a splendid majority.

"I am meeting the people face to face," said Mr. Sheatz, as he chatted about his campaign, as he stopped off here between trains, "and I am more than pleased with my reception."

"I want the people to scan my record in the legislature and vote accordingly."

"While acting as chairman of the appropriations committee at Harrisburg during the last session of the legislature, I was particularly interested in the matter of increasing the public school appropriation for the counties."

"With the help of the rest of the committee and the consent of our good governor, we succeeded in increasing the former amount $4,000,000, thereby making the total $15,000,000 for the next two years."

"Besides providing this great amount for the public school system, there were also large sums appropriated for the state normal schools, for the State College and the Universities of Pennsylvania and Pittsburg—all of which was for the benefit of the young men and women of our state, and I am looking forward to the time when the state government of Pennsylvania shall appropriate all the money necessary to educate her children."

"No state in the Union gives nearly as much to her counties as Pennsylvania for the public schools. We want to give to each child better opportunities to become a well educated citizen, to be better qualified to do his or her part toward keeping our state in the front ranks of the Union, for these advantages should lead to a higher standard of citizenship and better government."

"When the people of Pennsylvania elected that splendid representative American, Edwin S. Stuart, governor of this commonwealth, they laid the foundation of better government and the people need have no anxiety as to the welfare of their state, for their government will be conducted safely and honestly."

"The assertions made by members of the opposing party, that there should be a minority representative in the board of public grounds and buildings in order to insure economy and honesty, does not appeal to the people of broader minds who know the sterling qualities of Edwin S. Stuart, our governor, and Robert S. Young, auditor general, two of the three men comprising that board."

"As a candidate for the office of state treasurer of this state, I am free from any obligations whatever, excepting my duty to the people of this commonwealth, and if my fellow citizens believe in me and feel I will be true to the trust I ask them to repose in me, then I hope they will vote for me."

Run and Unrun.

How They Fooled the Preacher.

When our grandmothers arranged to have chicken for Sunday dinner—for the preacher—they picked out the biggest and fattest and toughest old hen on the place Saturday afternoon and had the boys and dogs "run her down." A tough old hen that is chased all over the place and frightened out of her life is as tender as a spring lamb when cooked. Fright makes any animal, bird or fowl tender, so the books say, and it appears from this that our grandmothers knew what they were about when they had the tough old hens chased before killing.—El Dorado (Kan.) Magnetic Toys.

Magnetic toys, such as swans, fish, boats, etc., may be made of any light material, such as cork or elder pith. Much pleasant occupation for evenings may be found in shaping these light objects, and if a small piece of steel or iron be placed in some prominent part of the object it will float about in the water in obedience to the movements of a magnet held near it. Broken pieces of needles, if carefully handled, do very well to fasten into the floating objects and serve as points to be attracted by the magnet.

FOR HUNTERS.

A Sportsman Tenders Good Advice to His Brethren.

As the hunting season is now on, a few reminders of the thousands of hunters who go into the woods and fields in quest of game, will not be amiss, and if paid attention to, will doubtless result in great and lasting good; doing much toward the perpetuation of the game animals and birds of our great state.

First of all, never violate any of the game laws; always hunt in moderation, never exceeding the bag limit. The days of big bags have passed.

Take your game in a fair and sportsmanlike manner; never pot it or you will be included in the game hog class.

Do not, under any circumstances, kill any bird or animal that is not strictly game, especially song and insectivorous birds.

Turn not your guns upon the black birds, although the state gives you permission to do so, for they are not game birds any more than are robins, flickers, woodpeckers, meadow larks, etc.

Do not "clean out" the game in any section, leave some for seed. The less game killed for the next eight or ten years the better, in order to give it a chance to increase. Don't hunt deer. With all the protection given these noble animals, they are not yet plentiful enough to kill.

Do not cut down or burn squirrel trees; wait for the squirrel to come out, and never damage any line timber.

Be very careful not to empty the burning contents of your pipe or throw matches and cigar stumps among the dry leaves, and when you build a fire in the woods, be sure it is extinguished before you leave. The destruction done by forest fires is enormous.

Always remember you cannot use too much care in the use of guns in the woods, for your own safety as well as others. And last but not least, do not do any damage on farm lands over which you hunt; show your appreciation of the farmer's kindness in permitting you to hunt on his land, by being very careful not to destroy anything and always remember to be as much a gentleman in the woods as at any other place.

Murder Will Out.

Tuesday afternoon, says the Du Bois Courier, two prisoners, George Hollobaugh and Ed Seifridge, both mountaineers of the ridges which form a part of the waterheds of Bennett's Branch, Kersey Run and Toby Creek, were taken through here on the way to Clearfield jail, being committed by Squire Hoover, of Penfield, on the charge murder. Their alleged victim was Fred Bateman, son of James Bateman, of Caledonia.

In the hunting season of last year, the local paper were full of the finding of the remains of Bate, identified by his people by parts of his clothing and his disappearance in the spring or early summer of 1905. A party of hunters found the remains and it was their supposition that the person, unknown to them, had been torn by a bear. Resident of the neighborhood, however, thought there might have been foul play, but there was no way of getting a clue of distinct value. The remnants of the body and clothing were found near a tributary of Kersey Run, where Bateman had gone to fish. In that territory Seifridge and Hollobaugh had a camp and were bearding cattle. The thing which finally occurred to lead up to the arrests was a rallying out among the herders. The Hollobaugh brothers quarreled and George, so an alleged witness says, threatened the other as follows: "If you don't look out I'll fix you like I did Bateman."

The witness further says that he made other threats with allusions to the killing of Bateman, on which his mother warned him that he had better look out or he would get himself into trouble. Following these "breaks" it was gradually picked up, owing to the bad blood that had been stirred up among the young men, that Bateman, while on his fishing expedition, visited the camp of the herders. And it is asserted that while there he became involved in a quarrel and drew a revolver, whereupon George Hollobaugh whipped out a gun and shot him. An extension of the story as it has been worked up says that the herders then took the body out into the woods some distance from the camp and left it lying on the ground where the remains were found by the hunter.

It is understood that the father of young Bateman instituted the prosecution. Measurements taken show that the body was found in Elk county, but the camp is in this county. It is said that an effort will be made to secure the release of the prisoners on bail.—Du Bois Courier.

A Fireman's Memorial Day.

One of the most significant actions taken by the State firemen in their convention at Pittsburg was the setting apart of the Sunday nearest preceding January 17 Benjamin Franklin's birthday, as Fireman's Memorial day. On that day the firemen are all to attend church and listen to a service which will have special reference to the dead, but she also acknowledge the fact that the living stand ready to risk their life, to save life or property that is endangered by the fire fiend. The risks taken by firemen are not fully enough appreciated by most people unless some startling event gives them special prominence for a moment. Then they are forgotten again. And it is fitting that everybody should be reminded at least once a year of the obligation they owe to the brave fire ladders.

The Bellefonte fire companies have for many years been attending service in a body annually, and are thus in advance of the firemen of the state generally.

A DESPERATE GAME

Democrats Resort to Campaign of Slander and Abuse.

BOURBON TACTICS REVIVED

Despite Onslaught of the Enemy Republican Lines in Pennsylvania Are Unbroken and Moving On to Triumph.

[Special Correspondence.]

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 15.

Without a single issue upon which to make a campaign, the Democrats of Pennsylvania, in a desperate effort to win the coming election, have resorted to the old-time tactics of slander, personal abuse and wilful misrepresentation of the Republican party and its candidate.

In the closing hours of the present state contest the Democratic editors and professional spellbinders find the tide of popular sentiment running so strongly against them that they seem to have lost all regard for decency and self-respect in the reckless and unscrupulous methods employed to promote their cause.

Despite the fact that before he was made the Republican nominee for state treasurer, John O. Sheatz was lauded by every Democratic newspaper in the state as a fearless, independent and public-spirited member of the state legislature, these same journalistic stars are now filling the columns of their newspapers with violent attacks upon Mr. Sheatz, with statements entirely at variance with their laudatory references to him while he was a member of the general assembly, fighting the battles of the people, and they are calling upon the voters to defeat him at the polls and elect in his stead a man whose strongest claim upon them is that he is a Democrat.

Reckless Democratic Oratory.

Supplementing the work of the Democratic editors, are a corps of professional Democratic politicians who are stumping the counties repeating charges that are absolutely unfounded, and circulating most flagrantly false statements in regard to Mr. Sheatz's votes in the legislature and in other ways misrepresenting the Republican candidate and his party.

This campaign of vituperation and abuse is a logical sequence to the attempt at the very outset of the contest to weaken Mr. Sheatz among the old soldiers of Pennsylvania by the distribution of circulars teeming with falsehoods and malice, and designed to array the veterans of the Civil War against him in the matter of the soldiers' pension bill.

The prompt and emphatic repudiation of this scheme by leading and influential members of the Grand Army, who knew Mr. Sheatz's ardent and conscientious interest in the old soldiers and sailors, and who, over their signatures, told the story of his devotion to their cause, for the time being completely demoralized the managers of the Democratic machine.

Bourbon Tactics Recalled.

Hostilities have been resumed, however.

There has evidently been an agreement among the Democratic politicians to go the limit in the closing days of the canvass in the matter of misrepresentation and abuse of every thing Republican, and especially of the Republican nominee for state treasurer.

Last week marked the opening of this contemptible campaign. It is to be carried on without cessation until the polls close upon the 5th of November, but there is every reason to believe that the well-meaning citizens of the Keystone state will recognize this revival of the despicable Bourbon methods which for years characterized Democratic campaigns in this and other states.

The citizens of Pennsylvania are all familiar with the high personal character, the unblemished public record, the clean purpose and the proved integrity of John O. Sheatz, and it is certain that the more the Democratic editors and machine orators attack him the greater will be his majority at the coming election.

The people have confidence in Mr. Sheatz and will resent the disreputable campaign that is being waged against him.

Looking to the Presidency.

Under existing conditions in Pennsylvania, the success of the Republican ticket is inevitable.

Every effort on the part of the opposition to divide the Republican vote has been a failure. Independents who have recently been figuring in fusion movements are practically all lined up for the Republican candidate. They see that this is but the beginning of a great national fight in which the Republican hosts will be lined up against the national Democracy in a struggle for the presidency. They want to have their party united now, so that Republicanism will not be handicapped next year when it shall be called upon to elect a successor to President Roosevelt. They want to let the nation know by the size of the Republican majority in Pennsylvania this fall that the Keystone state is again at the front, prepared to battle for the principles and the policies which have made this the greatest nation upon the globe.

THE LAND OF ROMANCE.

Spain and the Peculiar Temperament of Its People.

If I were asked to sum up the dominant impression that the survival in Spain of the old world mediaevalism makes, I should say that Spain is in the precise and specific sense of the word the home of romance. The special character of the Spanish temperament and of Spanish developments in literature and in art is marked by a quality, rising and sinking with the rise and fall of Gothic, which we call the romantic spirit—a mixture, that is, of the mysterious and grandiose with the grotesquely bizarre of the soaringly ideal with the crudely real, a mixture which to us today has the cunning fascination of art, but was really on both sides the natural outcome of the experiences and feelings of the men who created it. This romantic spirit was once the common possession of all Christendom, but the Spanish temperament peculiarly lent itself to the romantic attitude, and it is in Spain today that we may catch its final vanishing echoes. It is the church, always the most powerful stronghold of tradition among any people, which enables the stranger most vividly to realize how well the romantic spirit has been preserved in Spain. Notwithstanding invasions from without and revolutions from within, especially during the early years of the last century, Spain is still the country where the medieval spirit of romantic devotion is most splendidly embodied and preserved.

How Will the World End?

It has always been an intensely interesting conjecture to scientists and, at the same time, the greater part of the other intelligent members of society as to the way in which our world will at length come to an end. Many think that it will be through the gradual cooling of the sun, which will eventually fail to give out sufficient heat to sustain life on our planet. But another—and a particularly unpleasant—fate that might befall us is explained in a work by Mr. Ellard Gore, "Real danger," says he, "is always to be feared from the presence of immense dark bodies, moving unseen in space, vast dead suns, whose collision with our own would increase its heat enormously and thus instantly destroy the earth." We should not, however, be without a warning of our terrible end, for on entering a radius of 15,000,000 miles from the sun the advancing body would begin to shine with reflected light, and fifteen years would elapse between the time of the destroyer's being sighted and its collision with the sun.

Glass Cutting.

The layman who is introduced to the mysteries of cutting glass for the first time is amazed at the amount of work that the workman does entirely by his eye. The first stage of the bowl which is to be cut finds it in a perfectly plain condition, not a scratch upon it and only a half dozen or more marks in red chalk, which mean absolutely nothing to the unpracticed eye. But to the workman they mean the whole pattern. Perhaps the dish is a salad bowl. The marks in chalk will run from the edge, five intervals apart, down to the center of the bowl at the bottom. In one of the divisions of the bowl thus marked there may be a little further marking in the shape perhaps of a diamond. This indicates the pattern into which the bowl is to be cut, and it will be repeated in each of the five divisions. All the intricacies of the design the workman has in his head, and they develop on the glass in a way which seems to the looker on absolutely marvelous.—New York Times.

A Kind Examiner.

Sir John F. Stainer was dearly loved by the students when he was professor of music at Oxford. "As an examiner he was most considerate," said one who studied under him, "and would always do his best to get you through." I remember his asking me a poser in a viva voce examination. He waited patiently for the answer; but, partly through my nervousness no doubt, I could not think of it. At length he exclaimed testily, "Dear me, how stuffy this room is, to be sure," and he went and began tugging at the ventilator cord. It was quite two minutes before he got the thing open, and by the time he had sat down again and rearranged his gown I had the answer ready. Comparing notes later in the day with a man who was examined quite soon after me, I told him how the ventilator had served me. "How remarkable," he replied, "Why, when I was stuck he said, 'How extraordinary drafty this place is,' and spent quite two minutes in shutting the ventilator."—Manchester Guardian.

Wedding Halted by Bleeding Crazy Man

With blood flowing from wounds in his head, John Yank burst in upon the Eber home at Pottsville just as the wedding ceremony of Miss Lena Eber and Louise Seaman was being solemnized. The guests fled in alarm.

The fellow was finally handed over to the police. It was found he was a mad man, who had escaped from the almshouse, and he was promptly returned there. The wounds he received were from falls.

After the maniac had been removed the wedding and the nuptial festivities were resumed.

LIKE FINDING MONEY.

C. M. Parrish Offers Popular Medicine at Half-Price.

C. M. Parrish the popular druggist is making an offer that is just like finding money for his regular customers. He is offering 50 cent bottles of Dr. Parrish's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia a half-price. In addition to this large discount he agrees to return the money to any purchaser whom the specific does not cure.

It is quite unusual to be able to buy fifty-cent bottles for a quarter, but that is what this offer really means, for it is only recently that Dr. Parrish's medicine could be bought for less than fifty cents. He urged the proprietors to allow them to sell at this reduced price for a little while, agreeing to sell a certain amount. The result has justified his good judgment, for the sale has been some thing remarkable.

Anyone who suffers with headache, dyspepsia, dizziness, sour stomach, speck before the eyes, or any liver trouble, should take advantage of this opportunity, for Dr. Parrish's specific will cure all of these troubles. But if by chance it should not, C. M. Parrish will return your money.

The specific is very pleasant to take, coming in the form of small granules, and there are sixty doses in every package. It is especially convenient when traveling, and no one should start on a journey without a bottle of this reliable medicine.

A Most Urgent Appeal to the Good Citizens of Bellefonte

The executive committee of the Young Woman's Club hereby appeals to your sympathy, generosity and prayers for its work in this vicinity. It is a great work in an hitherto untouched field. For the past six months hundreds of different girls, making thousands of visits, have been invited from their homes, the factories, the streets, and the shops of this town as visitors to the present rooms and the entertaining and uplifting influences of this Club. Much good has been done, but not the hundredth part of that which cries aloud to be done. The question of the permanency of this Club is bound up with the most serious moral and social problems that have ever confronted the citizens of Bellefonte. A moral cancer is spreading frightfully in our midst. The problem of its cure appeals to every good and thoughtful person—but most powerfully to the parents of each boy and girl; for it affects both sexes alike. In spite of all this, the work has been misunderstood, criticised and some times even ridiculed.

The generous contributions of a few friends are now exhausted and the executive committee has been driven to the conclusion that this work so near their hearts and of such incalculable value to certain of the young women of the town must be abandoned and the present Club rooms closed unless instant relief, both in the nature of money contributions and personal work, be assured. The very suggestion of such a possibility has filled with surprise and amazement the young women and girls who have learned to look upon the Club room as a home and a refuge. We can assure the public that there is no lack of interest in the hearts of those that are to be helped. They are ready to cooperate even out of their small earnings; yet, under present conditions, the rooms can remain open but a few days longer. Don't let this soul-felt appeal fall upon deaf ears and cold hearts. The Executive Committee Young Woman's Club.

No danger of consumption if you use Foley's Honey and Tar to cure that stubborn cough.

Children Kidnaped.

A warrant was issued Wednesday morning by Mrs. Mrs. Baile Jackson for the apprehension of her recreant husband Jacob, for the alleged kidnapping of their three children, Mary and Harry. Jackson, it is alleged, took the children to Lemont and it is supposed they are prisoners at the home of his brother, John. The warrant was given to Constable Irvin Holmes to serve but before he arrived at Lemont someone gave Jackson a tip and he skidded.

It appears that Jackson had a talk with his children on Tuesday and requested them to meet him in the woods the next morning as he wished to tell them something of importance. Only two of them went to the place agreed upon and that was the last seen of them. Jackson it is bound to get into trouble. Six months ago he was arrested on the charge of making threats and personal abuse, and was released by the court on the promise that he would not molest his family and keep away from State College. He evidently had no regard for the court for he has broken his promise and if caught this time and placed in durance it will be for a long time.

Sold Adulterated Fruit.

The first case to be brought under the direction of the Pure Food Commission was heard in Altoona, last Saturday. The defendant, Charles M. Kephart, failed to appear, although a fine of $60 and cost was imposed upon him. Kephart keeps a grocery store in Altoona and was arrested on the charge of selling evaporated peaches containing sulphurous acid.

Dr. William Frear, of the Pennsylvania State College, to whom the sample had been sent for analysis, testified that the peaches contained sulphurous acid, a poisonous substance injurious to health. Dr. Horace R. Smith, of Altoona, and Dr. W. A. Neason, of Roaring Spring, testified that sulphurous acid was a violent poison and when taken into the system in minute quantities was injurious to the health, especially to the stomach and kidneys. At the conclusion of the taking of testimony Alderman Irwin imposed a fine of $60 and costs on the defendant. The case will likely be appealed as it has previously been agreed upon that the case would be taken up as a test case by the wholesale merchant's association.

Who Will Take the Lead

Hazelton will have a rousing celebration Halloween night. The demonstration will take place under auspices of the Mummies' Association composed of representatives of the prominent clubs and societies.

John McFarlane, president of the Hazelton Sextette Club, is at the head of the affair, and it is expected that the celebration will eclipse anything of the kind ever attempted there. The Mummies' Association is also arranging for a New Year celebration.

What's the matter with the clubs and lodges of Bellefonte getting up a mummies' parade for Halloween night. All that is needed is for some organization to start the movement when others will without a doubt fall into line. It is getting to be the real thing for cities of any importance to have a mummies' celebration, and Bellefonte should not be behind the times. Besides affording much amusement for our own citizens the celebration will bring many people here from adjacent towns and hamlets. The time to act is at once, as Halloween is but two weeks off.

Do You Open Your Mouth

Like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you? Or, do you want to know something of the composition and character of that which you take into your stomach whether as food or medicine?

Most intelligent and sensible people now-a-days insist on knowing what they employ whether as food or as medicine. Dr. Pierce believes they have a perfect right to insist upon such knowledge. So he publishes, broadcast and on each bottle wrapper, what his medicines are made of and what they will do. This he feels he can well afford to do because the more the ingredients of which his medicines are made are studied and understood the more will their superior curative virtues be appreciated.

For the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and derangements, giving rise to frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down pain or distress in lower abdominal or pelvic region, accompanied, oftentimes, with a debilitating, pelvic, catarrhal drain and kindred symptoms of weakness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy. It is equally effective in curing painful periods, in giving strength to nursing mothers and in preparing the system of the expectant mother for baby's coming, thus rendering childbirth safe and comparatively painless. The "Favorite Prescription" is a most potent, strengthening tonic to the general system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. It is also a soothing and invigorating nerve and cures nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuritis, hysteria, spasms, chills or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the distinctly feminine organs.

A host of medical authorities of all the several schools of practice, recommend each of the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is made for the cure of the diseases for which it is claimed to be a cure. You may read what they say for yourself by sending a postal card request for a free booklet of extracts from the leading authorities, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post.

THE CITY OF CANALS.

Venice and the Many Islands Upon Which It Is Built.

Venice is one of the most singular and famous cities in Europe and is built upon a cluster of islands in the lagoon. This lagoon is banked off from the Adriatic by a long, narrow sand bank which is divided into a number of islands, six in number. Inside of this sand bank and between it and the mainland is the lagoon, a sheet of shallow water. In parts of this marshy, sea covered plain islets have become consolidated into ground, firm enough to be cultivated.

In the midst of a crowded cluster of such islands, amounting to between seventy and eighty in number, the city of Venice is built. The chief of these islands is called Isola del Rialto, or Island of the Deep Stream. The islands, in many places mere shoals, afford no adequate foundation for buildings, and the city for the most part is built upon an artificial foundation of piles and stones.

The Grand canal divides Venice into two equal parts and is the main thoroughfare for traffic and pleasure. The city is subdivided by some one hundred and forty-six small canals or water streets, and the gondola is used for the carriage. Access can also be had to various parts of the city by land, there being over three hundred bridges across canals. The Rialto, the most famous bridge, spans the Grand canal. There are also narrow lanes in among the houses.

The Overruling of a Judge.

A judge once awoke in the night to find his room in the possession of two armed burglars. Covered by the pistol of one of the marauders, the judge watched the proceedings with his usual judicial calm. One of the depredators found a watch. "Don't take that," the judge said; "it has little value and is a keepsake." "The motion is overruled," replied the burglar. "I appeal," rejoined the judge. The two burglars consulted, and the spokesman then replied: "The appeal is allowed. The case coming on before a full tribunal of the supreme court, that body is of the unanimous opinion that the decree of the lower court should be sustained, and it is accordingly so ordered." Pocketing the watch, court adjourned.

Logic and Metaphysics.

Joaquin Miller was once conversing with a learned professor who was visiting California. To the poet's query, "What do you do?" the professor answered that he held the chair of metaphysics and logic at a New England university. Whereupon the venerable Miller, with an encouraging smile, reassuringly patted the professor on the shoulder. "Logic and metaphysics, eh? Well, I suppose we must have people to look after those things, even if they don't exist."

Torture.

"The Carthaginian mercenaries," he said, "incensed their prisoners in a comment that as it hardened contracted. You can't imagine how uncomfortable this was."

"Oh, yes, I can," she answered. "I once had on a tight bathing suit when it began to shrink." — Los Angeles Times.

Plenty of Old Ones.

Mr. Phillips (looking up from the paper)—The doctors have discovered another new disease. Mrs. Phillips—Well, I wish they'd stop looking for new diseases long enough to find a cure for my old rheumatism. — London Telegraph.

Both Disappointed.

He—I suppose, then, we may as well break the engagement and say we have both been disappointed in love. She—There seems to be no other conclusion. You thought I had money, and I certainly thought you had.—Judge.

He Told Her.

She—I wish I knew how I could make you extremely happy, dear Karl. He—Well, write to your father and ask him to double your dowry.—Megendorfer Blatter.

The "Nagur" and the Fiddle.

Here is a story that Frederick Douglass used to tell about himself: Once when he was in Dublin he felt very lonesome. He was wandering about the streets when he was attracted by two violins in the window of a second-hand dealer. Frederick entered and asked the price of one of the instruments. "Five shillings, sir," said the Irish dealer.

Frederick tuned the violin and began to play "Rocky Road to Dublin." Soon the proprietor's wife heard the music and entered the rear door. Then Frederick started in on "The Irish Washerwoman," and the couple began to dance for dear life. When the music and dancing stopped Frederick tendered the dealer 5 shillings, but his performance on the violin had greatly enhanced its value in the mind of the storekeeper, and as he hurried away to a place of security he exclaimed: "If a black nagur can get such chimes out of that fiddle I'll never sell it at any price, begorra!"

The Art of Talking Back.

"I hardly know how to answer you," said she when the widower proposed. "I would not let that worry me," said he soothingly. "That is something a woman learns perfectly soon after marriage."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Support.

Teacher—Who was it that supported the world upon his shoulders? Tommy—Atlas, sir. Teacher—Who supported Atlas? Tommy—The book don't say, but I 'spect his wife did.

Persian Ideas.

An American traveler in Persia learned that the common soldiers of that country supposed that the English practice of firing a salute at the burial of a soldier had for its object the driving away of devils. Other mistaken impressions no less absurd he reports in his "Persian Life and Customs."

A village soldier asked me if I knew of dog worshippers. I told him I had heard of fire worshippers, cow worshippers and the like, but not of dog worshippers. He said he had seen some in Teheran. Some foreigners there had fed dogs at their tables, had washed and clothed them, fondled them in their laps and taken them riding in their carriages. Were they not dog worshippers?

An English sea captain, whose ship touched at Bushire, took a horseback ride through the streets of the city, but made so poor a display of horsemanship as to astonish and amuse the people. The next day a vendor of fruits came on board the ship and said to the captain:

"I have made such an explanation as to free you from all reproach. There is no one who does not think that you are an expert rider, as becomes one of a nation of horsemen."

"And how did you do that?" asked the captain.

"I told them you were drunk."

Dr. Todd's Joke.

An amusing example of the Irishman's pronunciation occurs in a story told of the late Dr. Todd, the Irish archaeologist, who, although a great scholar, was not above perpetrating a practical joke. The London Spectator tells the story and says:

A very learned Englishman went to Dublin to examine some manuscripts in the library of Trinity college and was of course introduced to Dr. Todd, who one day in conversation told him that there was in Trinity college a curious instance of the survival of a habit dating from the time of the Danes; that at a certain hour of the afternoon—I think 6 o'clock—a porter went the round of the college ringing a bell and calling out in a loud voice, "The Dane's in the hall," when all the students rushed from their rooms to repel the invaders. So the learned but somewhat incredulous Englishman repaired to the college at 6 o'clock, and, sure enough, what Dr. Todd had told him came to pass, which he gravely related on his return to England. The summons of course referred to the dean.

The Three Fates.

The names of the three fates were Clotho, Lachesis and Atropos. To express the influence which they were believed to exercise on human life from birth to death they were represented as spinning a thread of gold, silver or wool, now tightening, now slackening and at last cutting it off. Clotho, the youngest, put the wool around the spindle, Lachesis spun it and the aged Atropos cut it off when a man had to die.

Books Written in Jail.

Jail seems to be a good place in which to write books. Literary men surpass themselves there. John Bunyan wrote "Pilgrim's Progress" in jail. Cervantes wrote "Don Quixote" in prison. Defoe laid the plans for "Robinson Crusoe" during a term of confinement imposed on him for the writing of a pamphlet called "The Shortest Way With the Dissenters." Leigh Hunt wrote "Rimington" in jail. Sir Walter Raleigh during his fourteen years' imprisonment in the Tower of London wrote his excellent "History of the World." Silvio Pellico and Tasso both did their best work in jail.

Food and Digestion.

One of the biggest mistakes about food which people make is to forget that the true value of food to anybody is the measure of its digestibility. Half a pound of cheese is vastly more nourishing, as regards its mere composition, than half a pound of beef; but while the beef will be easily digested, and thus be of vast service to us, the cheese is put out of court altogether for ordinary folks by reason of its indigestibility. We should bear this rule in mind when we hear people comparing one food with another in respect of their chemical value.

A Careful Official.

"Some years ago," remarked a physician, "when the people in the south feared that an epidemic of yellow fever would spread from Cuba to this country the health board officer of a certain southern city was so careful to keep out the infection that he gave orders to disinfect all telegrams received from Havana."

One Sided Talk.

He—Wasn't there some talk about Maud marrying a duke? She—There was, but unfortunately the duke did none of the talking.

His Scheme Worked All Right.

It is related that a certain man was recently very sad because his wife had gone out of town on a visit, which she would not shorten in spite of his appeals to her to come home. He finally hit upon a plan to induce her to return. He sent her a copy of each of the local papers with one item clipped out, and when she wrote to find out what it was he had clipped out he refused to tell her.

The scheme worked admirably. In less than a week she was home to find out what it was that had been going on that her husband didn't want her to know about. — Ladies' Home Journal.

Have a care of whom you talk, to whom and of what and where.—Horace.

To Prevent Riding Up of Skirt.

A common complaint is that skirts will ride up in the front. Women that have prominent abdomens have more trouble than others. There are two remedies for this—either to wear some of the many contrivances which are sold for this purpose or to make a tab of lining material about four and a half inches wide and five inches long. This must be shaped out to fit the center of the skirt in front and caught with the seam when the facing is sewed on at the waist line. Finish the edge of it by pinking.

Modish Perfumes.

The woman who aspires to smartness takes care to be au fait in the matter of perfumes. Each year sees several new scents in vogue, though a certain few of the old fashioned essences retain their popularity. Of these lavender and wood violet denote the refined, well bred woman. The scent of the present season are remarkable for their subtle yet penetrating odor. Violette de Indes are again considered modish.

Portuguese Salad.

Slice two medium sized firm cucumbers, one small Spanish onion, two medium sized tomatoes, two sweet peppers and two sound apples from which the cores have been removed. Mix in a salad bowl with four tablespoonfuls of French dressing. Serve plain or on lettuce leaves, ice cold.

How They Fooled the Preacher.

When our grandmothers arranged to have chicken for Sunday dinner—for the preacher—they picked out the biggest and fattest and toughest old hen on the place Saturday afternoon and had the boys and dogs "run her down." A tough old hen that is chased all over the place and frightened out of her life is as tender as a spring lamb when cooked. Fright makes any animal, bird or fowl tender, so the books say, and it appears from this that our grandmothers knew what they were about when they had the tough old hens chased before killing.—El Dorado (Kan.) Republican.

Curious.

Mr. Chow has a passion for curios, but was not able to distinguish a genuine article from a spurious one. One day a dealer came to him wishing to sell the lacquer bowl of Emperor Shun (B. C. 2255), the rod with which the Duke of Chow (about B. C. 1122) flogged Pak Kam, and the mat on which Confucius sat (B. C. 551). Mr. Chow sold all his worldly possessions and purchased them. Holding the bowl in his left hand, clutching the rod in his right hand and carrying the mat upon his back, he went around begging for a copper coin of King Woo (B. C. 1122).—From the Chinese.

Demonstration.

Grace—And did you ever propose to a girl in a canoe? Fred—Yes, and I'll never do it again. The girl jumped at my proposal and upset the boat.—Harper's Weekly.

All the Difference.

"Society dropped the De Lacy's because they had a skeleton in their closet, I understand?" "No—because they didn't keep it there."—Cleveland Leader.

The Only Way.

"I am writing an article," he said, "on 'The Way to Manage a Woman.'" "I suppose it will be a long one," she replied in a slightly scornful tone. "No," he answered, "it will be quite short. In fact, it will consist of only two words—'Don't try.'"—Birmingham Post.

Hospital Officers Elected

The annual meeting of the citizens of Bellefonte was held in the Arbitration room at the Court House Friday evening to elect a board of managers for the Bellefonte hospital for the ensuing year. The term of Dr. George F. Harris and John M. Shugert had expired and they were re-elected for four years.

Other officers elected were as follows: President, C. C. Shoeny; Vice President, Dr. J. L. Seibert; Secretary, George R. Meek; Treasurer, W. Harrison Walker.

—The Sanbury Daily of Saturday said: Going into the hay mow of his barn in East Sanbury, shortly before noon Saturday morning, to throw some straw to the lower fold, Hiram Haas was horrified to find the dead body of an unknown man lying at full length and half buried in a pile of straw. The man was about fifty years of age and had evidently died there while asleep. How long he had lain cold in death is not known, although it is probable that he was there several days. The mow is entered at irregular intervals, and only when straw is needed and no one has been in it for two or three days. The dead man was taken in charge by Undertaker Shipman and prepared for burial.

His empty pockets revealed nothing that might establish his identity. His whole appearance suggested that he was a foreign laborer. The body will be held a short time pending a possible identification. It is likely that the man had ridden on a freight to town and stopped over night in Haas' barn, which bold tramps have turned into a hoboes' hostelry.

The long evenings are coming, affording splendid opportunity for indoor pleasure at the family fire-side, particularly in reading good books and periodicals. What a fund of information can thus be gathered that will prove helpful in the days and years to come.

KIDNEY TROUBLE

Suffered Two Years—Relieved In Three Months.

MR. C. B. FIZER, Mt. Sterling, Ky.

"I have suffered with kidney and bladder trouble for ten years past. Last March I commenced using Peruna and continued for three months. I have not used it since, nor have I felt a pain."

"I believe that I am well and I therefore give my highest commendation to the curative qualities of Peruna."

Per-na For Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. Geo. H. Simser, Grant, Ontario, Can., writes: "I had not been well for about four years. I had kidney trouble, and, in fact, felt badly nearly all the time."

"This summer I got so very bad I thought I would try Peruna, so I wrote to you and began at once to take Peruna and Manalin."

"I took only two bottles of Peruna and one of Manalin, and now I feel better than I have for some time."

"I feel that Peruna and Manalin cured me and made a different woman of me altogether. I bless the day I picked up the little book and read of your Peruna."

It is the business of the kidneys to remove from the blood all poisonous materials. They must be active all the time, else the system suffers. There are times when they need little assistance.

Peruna is exactly this sort of a remedy. It has saved many people from disaster by rendering the kidneys service at a time when they were not able to bear their own burdens.

How to Boom Our City.

Every little country village has an ambition to become a trade center and a boom city, with no special natural features or geographical advantages. Under such conditions what is most needed is some enterprise on the part of its local capitalists. They must make the first advance in the uncertain field of development. They must capitalize small factories and see that they are kept employed. When the local business is finally developed and proves to the world that they are successful, then outside enterprises will be sure to step up and enjoy your prosperity with you. Just like a fellow who finds a favorite fishing hole and catches fish, and all the other fishermen who see that he is catching will drop their hooks right by the side of the lucky fisherman. The business men of any town should stop talking and hoping for others to do something for the town. They should get together themselves and prove to the world that they have a money making town. No outsider will want to fish in our swimming hole until we prove that they can catch fish.

Bellefonte is so situated as to be the real metropolis of the entire region, and while we rejoice in the recognition that is given it as a trade centre, a proper effort on the part of our people can bring it more conspicuously to the front, drawing other industries and people that will make it more than ever a desirable town in which to live and do business.

Snow Shoe.

William McLaughlin and bride returned home on Tuesday evening and were met by the Snow Shoe Cornet Band which played some very nice pieces. We feel proud of our fine band as they are improving. N. G. played the cymbals, and on their way home they played so fast that Peggy could not keep up. James Shaw played the bass drum and he played double duty.

We wish William McLaughlin and wife a happy journey through life and may their troubles be little ones. Mr. McLaughlin is a very fine man and is well liked by everybody and we think that his little wife will make him a good helpmate.

The band boys say that they are going to give Kili the button he always carries the torches and the night of the serenading he wasn't around. I guess he was moon hunting with Pete and Ed. How about it Roll?

Our old friend Philip Shaw has secured himself a job on the R. R. as brakeman. Now we all wish him good luck, he is all right and it sticks to it he will be snowing some some of these days but he will have to watch his legs and arms and also his neck.

James Stark and wife returned home the other night and were met by the Snow Shoe band which played some very charming pieces. Mr. Stark presented the band with $5.00 and then the band boys were invited into the house and had ice cream, cake and coffee and after supper there was a box full of smoke passed around. The supper was given at the home of the bride's parents Mr. Robt. Parks. The band boys were very well pleased with their treat, especially Roll.

Ernest Eckerth our bustling engineer has secured another job. He runs M. D. Kelly's auto. Earnest has made some fly trips to Kansas and back. He took Wm. Lohm out for an outing the other day and ran so fast that he scared Bill. Earnest said that Bill's eyes stuck out as big as pot feet.

From early youth to the frost of age, Man's days have been a mixture, Of all that constitutes in life A dark and gloomy picture.

As the summer sunbeams Deep o'er the distant hills On some sweet and lovely brook, So my weary longing eyes Warm with the dew of love To these alone doth look.

Oh thy fair finger, lovely maiden, Let there no jewel ever be If carved by the cut of a knife For the diamond ring be given thee.

The Uzzle Bros. are getting gas lights in their houses from Mr. Ballock from Milesburg. T. B. would like to have every thing his own way but he can't rule everybody. He wants everybody to have electric lights. Now to get such lights as that in Snow Shoe would cost a big sum of money and then there would be a lot of graft, so we will wait a while yet and see how things go before we go to so much expense.

Now that Earny and his engine has parted from us we will no longer hear its rumbling sound nor see the shaking of Earny's head. We feel sorry to see him go but the best of friends must part.

Our old friend James Reading, who is proprietor of The Lenox House in Clearfield, has been visiting his many friends in this place the past few days. He is well liked by every body and we are always glad to see his smiling face when he comes.

Grant Keeling while in Bellefonte attending the fair lost his pocket book and $109.75 and five P. R. R. passes and a certificate for $500 and some valuable receipts. That wasn't a very good day for Dutch because $109.75 is a very small item.

James and John Snow were in Bellefonte to see the fair while on their way in James Shaw lost $400 in paper money, when he left home he had $500 one dollar bills and when he got off the train in Bellefonte he only had one hundred dollar left. Cooler was along to, he reports having a fairly good time.

Mrs. Joseph Wade who is in the hospital at Lock Haven is slowly recovering she was operated on for appendicitis. She has been very sick but we hope to see her back with her many friends in a few weeks she is a good woman and what is a home without a mother.

Froggy Cramer has purchased himself a shot gun he expects to go hunting some of these days, anybody wanting any game of any kind, get their orders in early because he is a crack shot. How about it Sorghum.

There was a show held up at the park last Saturday night by Mr. Frederick Hurd, the great magician, it was for the benefit of Snow Shoe band. Mr. Hurd is a very clever man he does some wonderful tricks which puzzles the naked eye. His program was delightful from beginning to end, his last act was the chest mystery, the chest being firmly bound with ropes from one end to the other then he sits down on the chest and gets four men from the audience to tie him secretly to the chest he is placed inside of a cabinet while the band played he tied himself from the chest and "eta inside of it then the chest is unlocked and untied and he gets out. Mr. Hurd showed pleased everybody, I don't think there was one dissatisfied person in the audience.

John Green says that he could tie Hurd that he would not get loose and he would bet money on it. I don't know how much money he wants to bet, it will be a large sum.

Mrs. Rachael Rittenhouse.

Mrs. Rachael Rittenhouse, widow of L. W. Rittenhouse, deceased, one of our oldest and most highly respected citizens died Monday evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jeremiah Miller, Grampian, where she has been visiting during the past eight weeks. She has been ill only about two weeks and her death was the result of a general breaking down of her health.

The deceased was aged about 78 years. She was born at Bellefonte, and was the daughter of Dr. A. Walton Bayard, long since deceased, and who for years was a practicing physician at the county seat. Since the death of her husband in 1837, she has been making her home with her children. She was a devout christian and had a large circle of friends who will deeply mourn her death. Surviving her are the following sons and daughters Mrs. Annie Tregoning, Philipsburg; Edward, Lewisburg; George and Frank, Philipsburg; and Mrs. Jeremiah Miller, Grampian.

The body was taken to Philipsburg for burial. Mrs. Rittenhouse was a sister of the late Colonel George A. Bayard of this place.

Pious Impostors

Impostors, masquerading as priests or nuns and professing to represent some worthy charity, have been preying upon the people of the Scranton diocese to such an extent of late that Bishop Hoban felt constrained to sound a note of admonition. The bishop sent a letter to all the priests of the diocese warning the people against these impostors and advising that no money be given persons representing themselves as priests or nuns unless authority to solicit has been vested in them by the parish priests.

GROOMING COUNTS

But it cannot make a Fair Skin or a Glossy Coat.

Women with good complexions cannot be homely. Creams, lotions, washes and powders cannot make a fair skin. Every horseman knows that the satin coat of his thoroughbred comes from the animal's "all-right" condition.

Let the horse get "off his feed" and his coat turns dull. Curing, brushing and rubbing will give him a clean coat, but cannot produce the coveted smoothness and gloss of the horse's skin, which is his complexion. The ladies will see the point.

October Nuptials.

Two of Tyrone's best known and popular young people were joined in the sacred bonds of wedlock Tuesday when Miss Lucy Potter Moyer became the bride of Wallace Edgar Camp. The ceremony which signalized their union was performed at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Hiltner, 1307 North Washington avenue.

It was a wedding without ostentation, but none the less a pretty one. Only the members of the families of the young principals were present, comprising a company of less than twenty, the guests of honor being the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Lucy Moyer, of Bellefonte. At the appointed hour the young couple took their places before Rev. George T. Gunter, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who officiated in the ceremony. The bride was married in a blue traveling gown. After the ceremony and the attendant congratulations the company sat down to a fine wedding dinner. On the afternoon express Mr. and Mrs. Camp departed for a honeymoon visit to eastern cities. They will return to reside in Mr. Camp's new home, on Eighth street, which is already fitted for their occupancy.

The bride is an attractive and capable young lady who will enter upon her new sphere well qualified for its duties and responsibilities. Likewise, the groom is a worthy, competent young business man, successful as the manager of the Tenth street store of the Kirk-Camp furniture company. Many handsome gifts attested the esteem in which they were held. That their life together may be a continual joy, with every item of prosperity, is the wish of their friends.

Leah Kleschna Well Received.

If you did not see "Leah Kleschna" on Tuesday evening without a doubt you missed the best play of the season. The Garman opera house was comfortably filled with the elite of Bellefonte and through the entire play the most intense interest was shown by every one present.

Miss Bohn as "Leah Kleschna" was exceptionally fine, she has a fine stage presence and her every move and action stamped her as an artist. Miss Bohn during last season was Mrs. Harrison Gray Fiske's understudy and was an apt pupil of this wonderful actress, the result is that she does a fine piece of work in the role of "Leah Kleschna." Miss Bohn has an excellent supporting company. Mr. Charles Balsar as "Paul Sylva" carried out his part in the play in a splendid manner. C. Norman Hammond as "Kleschna" Leah's father. Bernard Cavanaugh as "Schram" and Robert B. Kegerels as "Raoul Berton" Erskine Senford as "General Berton" and Mary Madden as "Madame Berton" being particularly good in their respective roles. The others in the cast were also excellent.

The staging of the play, costumes and elaborate scenery were all up to the high standard set by Mr. Fiske in all his productions. The audience was most appreciative and there was plenty of applause and many curtain calls.

"The King Bee."

A bewildering mixture of music comedy and pantomime such is the combination of amusement that the "King Bee" is composed of which will be the attraction at the Garman Opera House Oct. 18. The King Bee's family is composed of thirty people including Honey Girls and Queen Bees. They promise to make things buzz when they appear here. The production from report wherever the company has appeared is to give the people of this city a real treat and the heartiest laugh they ever had.

This sparkling musical comedy is founded on the New York Journal Cartoon Creation "The Katsedjammer Kids" and is said to be excruciatingly funny. The Speck Brothers, the original Yellow Kids, who were a pronounced success with McFadden's Flats and other well known attractions are playing the respective roles of "Hans and Fritz." Chas. Gramlich, the author of the play and book, who has a world wide reputation as a Dutch comedian appears in the role of Herr Wilhelm Bumpenke as aspirant for political honors. The King Bee cast includes such talented artists as Helen Hall, Mayfair Sisters, Ingram and Neale, Dolly and Stella Minor, Gartrude DeVell Bon Bon Sisters and others.

Judge Opposes Divorces.

Martin Bell, president judge of the Blair county courts, in his address at the dedication of the remodeled court house on Saturday, went on record as opposed to the granting of divorces, save for grave reasons. He said: "From 1896 to the present time 312 divorces have been granted in Blair county. This large increase in the number of divorces applied for and granted is worthy of note on the part of our lawmakers. Speaking for myself, I would amend our statutes so that absolute divorce would only be granted on the ground of adultery or for some other very grave reason. If husband and wife cannot live together because of incompatibility of temper or other minor reasons, let them live apart but do not allow them to remarry."

SUNDAY FARMING.

Regular Farm Work—harrowing and Sowing—Performed on the Sabbath Day.

October 6th was the first day of the week—Sunday—the Christian Sabbath. The weather during the past month has been very unfavorable to preparing the wheat bed and sowing the grain. Outside of the law—civil, moral and religious—Sunday was an ideal day to perform farm labor, and while, perhaps, many farmer wished throughout the day that their farm work had not been interrupted, and except one near Centre Hall laid aside the plow, the harrow, the grain drill. This one man followed out his desires—went to the field with his team and harrowed the ground and sowed his grain.

The sight of a farmer performing farm labor on the Sabbath day in a Christian community naturally caused much comment. It was the first offense of the kind committed in the recollection of the oldest inhabitant. The criticisms, of course, were as severe as numerous, and were indulged in by the worldly men and women—and by those who have their names on the church roll.

What does the laboring of this particular farmer indicate? Does it not reveal the fact that he is simply aping the business man? The farmer has always been accused of being behind the times, and it appears that this Mister Farmer is in the front ranks of his class and has adopted the method long pursued by the butcher, the baker, the candlestick-maker.

You Sabbath observing man or woman, look about you and see whether or not almost every business is carried on to a greater or less extent on the First Day of the Week. If you are so minded, can't you buy a pound of coffee, sugar, cigars, peanuts, meat, ride on the railroad train, hire a carriage for pleasure or profit?

Is not the factory wheel whirling, the printing press sending the news—both good and bad—to the four corners of the earth? Is not the miser counting his hoard, the money shark plotting to rob? Is not the politician laying his plans, and has not the president of the United States held conferences of political significance? All these, and more on the Sabbath Day? How many of you have not been one of the other party to these or similar transactions?

Not content with what business may come to him in the ordinary way on the Sabbath Day, does not the business man place his automatic chewing gum seller low enough to catch the pennies from the hands of children, whose parents endeavor to ease their conscience and fulfill their vows to support the cause of Christ by giving their off-pring a dirty copper as an offering?

The pira is necessity, necessity, necessity!

Is not plowing, harrowing and sowing on the Sabbath Day infinitely more honorable than to follow the page set by the average business man; or if you please, the man of leisure or wealth who spends God's day in fitting over the road in a rattling carry-all, rubber-tired runabout, finely appointed carriage, or 40 horse-power steamer? The question is not difficult to decide.

But two wrongs do not make a right. The farmer should not sow on the Sabbath Day, nor should the business man sell his wares, nor the man of leisure or wealth debase the day by reveling in pleasure.

Whose skirts are clear that he may cast the first stone at the Sabbath Day deprecator?

Oh! What a shame!

A Life Fall of Service.

Uncle Tom my Waddle who is very near the portals of the other world is in his 88th year and on his birthday he wrote a little piece of poetry that tells of the life that has been lived for the Master. It also speaks of the Love, Hope and Faith he has in the word of God. It is as follows:

I am eighty and eight
For my strength has been great
To toil and to serve and endure.
I have done what I could
To do the world good,
And the peace of my soul to secure.
Now at eighty and eight
I must move at a slow rate
But I thank the good Lord for my strength.
For He's lengthened my days
And filled them with praise
And brought me so near home at length.
I am eighty and eight
And within the straight gate
Which to life everlasting doth lead
What a mercy is this!
To be sure I am His,
And to know He supplies every need.
Now at eighty and eight
I resignedly wait
In the light of a clear setting sun!
For at no distant day
I expect Him to say
To his weary old servant, "Well done."

Getting Ahead of the Combine

The final mass meeting of the people of Newberry, to consider the matter of bringing doctors to Williamsport from other places to practice at the old rates is called for Wednesday evening, October 16. The committee wishes to make its report and conclude its work, having accomplished its mission in a manner that the members believe will be satisfactory. One doctor has already established himself in Newberry and a second will arrive as soon as his residence is ready for him.

Trackmen Get Passes.

It will be welcome news to many of the employees of the Pennsylvania railroad in this city to learn that beginning October 1, all trackmen who have served the road fifteen years and over will receive annual passes over their divisions, good for themselves and wives.

It is understood that shop men who have long been in service will receive attention next, and that before another month rolls there will be pleasant news for others who have been trying to get a favorable consideration in the distribution of annual passes.

VETERANS SPEAK OUT

Ringing Call to Old Soldiers to Back Sheatz For Treasurer.

HE WAS THEIR FRIEND

Patriotic Record of the Republican Party in Pennsylvania in Recognizing the Services of the Nation's Brave Defenders.

[Special Correspondence.]

Philadelphia, Oct. 15.

Nearly 500 well known veterans of the Civil War, soldiers and sailors who fought for the flag in the hour of the nation's peril, have united in an address to their fellow citizens of Pennsylvania calling upon them to support John O. Sheatz, the Republican nominee for state treasurer.

This action is doubly significant in view of the early attempts of Democratic politicians to align the war veterans in opposition to Mr. Sheatz.

A Patriotic Record.

The address to which these heroic Pennsylvanians append their signatures is a comprehensive statement of the record of the Republican party in the matter of caring for the veterans of the war in both the state and the nation. It recites in detail the many pension measures passed and gives figures showing the amount of money paid out to the veterans.

It emphasizes the policy of the Republican leadership in Pennsylvania, which has been responsible for the generous appropriations made to the schools for the care of the orphans of soldiers and sailors, a total expenditure of $12,545,153.74 having been made to date for this item alone.

There has been appropriated sums aggregating $1,887,089.42 to the home at Erie for friendless veterans, and homes for veterans and their wives established at Brookville, Hawkins Station and Philadelphia have been assisted by the state to the extent of $200,000.

Sheatz Was Sincere.

A careful review of the work of John O. Sheatz, as chairman of the committee on appropriations of the house of representatives, is given and Mr. Sheatz is declared to have acted with the highest spirit of patriotism and fairness in framing the bill providing for pensions for the veterans which Governor Stuart, on account of insufficiency of funds, felt obliged to veto.

As to Mr. Sheatz the address among other things says:

"Because of the insufficiency of the state funds the governor was compelled to very reluctantly veto the bill, but we have every reason to believe that at the next session of the legislature of our state there will be sufficient members, like Mr. Sheatz, whose patriotic impulses and affection for the veterans of the Civil War will insure the passage of a satisfactory bill for the purpose intended."

"In view of the facts herein presented, is it necessary to offer any further arguments or reasons when we ask you to support the Republican State ticket in the coming election? The candidates to be voted for have been nominated by the same old parties—John O. Sheatz for state treasurer, by the party of Lincoln, Grant and McKinley, the party that has ever sustained and cared for the veteran, his widow and the orphan, and honored and loved him for his services; his opponent, by the party that has never been known to favor the veteran in any way, but has stricken his name from the pension roll and has left him an object of charity."

"We ask for, not only your own vote, but that you use your influence with your fellow citizens that our state, which was true to the union in the days of '61, may still remain true to the party that has ever been true to the Union and has always been a friend to the soldier."

Republicans Are Aroused.

The chairman says he is highly gratified with the reports that come to him from every section of the state. The committeemen in all the counties are working enthusiastically and they assure him that a very large percentage of the vote will be polled.

There have been so many requests received at the state headquarters for meetings to be addressed by Candidate Sheatz that owing to conflicting dates suggested the state chairman has had difficulty in complying with the wishes of all of the county chairmen.

President Haggood, of the State League of Republican Clubs, is co-operating with State Chairman Andrews. He has addressed a number of meetings and reports that the young Republicans of the state are taking a keen interest in the campaign.

"Mr. Sheatz will have at least 100,000 majority," confidently predicted President Haggood, after returning from a tour of the state.

Chairman Wesley R. Andrews, of the Republican state committee, has completed an itinerary for Mr. Sheatz for this week, with meetings at Bradford, Wednesday; Kane, Thursday; Indiana, Friday, and Pittsburg on Saturday night.

FIRST WIRELESS MESSAGE.

Colonel Clowry of the Western Union Claims to Have Sent It.

The strike of the telegraph operators has brought into prominence the president of the Western Union Telegraph company, Colonel Robert C. Clowry, who succeeded General Thomas T. Eckert in this position about five years ago. It may not be generally known that Colonel Clowry has some claim to being the first to use wireless telegraphy. Strange to say, his employment of it was as long ago as the period of the civil war. Born in 1839 in Will county, Ill., he entered the employ of the Illinois and Mississippi Telegraph company at Joliet in 1852 as messenger boy, and in the service of that and other companies acquired a thorough knowledge of the telegraphic science of the day. When the civil war broke out he went to the front in the Union army, and in 1863 President Lincoln commissioned him captain and assistant quartermaster of the United States army and assigned him to duty in charge of the United States telegraphic system in the southwest, with headquarters at Little Rock, Ark. Afterward he served at St. Louis.

At one time he found himself in command of the lines at a certain point in Missouri, but unable to communicate with the Union forces across the Mississippi owing to the fact that the enemy had cut the wires. The message he desired to transmit was of the utmost importance, says the Saturday Evening Post in relating the story, and could on no account suffer delay. It was pitchy dark and the rain was descending in torrents, the wind was high and Colonel Clowry could conjure no way out of his difficulty. Suddenly he heard the toot of a locomotive on the other side of the river. An idea came to him. Only a short distance from him stood a locomotive, and, climbing into the cab, he seized the whistle cord and began to jerk it in a manner that made the engineer and fireman think he had gone crazy. There was a series of wild toots such as nobody had ever heard before in the history of railroading, but pretty soon they brought from the other side of the river answering whistles. The operator at headquarters had heard his call and realized that locomotive whistles instead of telegraph keys must be used in the transmission of an important message.

At the close of the war Colonel Clowry entered the service of the Western Union and rose to become its head. "Trying on" Furniture. When you go to buy a suit of furniture nowadays in one of our department stores you don't have to speculate as to how it will look in your room nor whether it will fit in or not. As soon as the salesman sees that a particular suit has met your fancy he calls for a porter or two and turns them loose in one of several rooms fitted up around the main showroom, setting them at work removing all the furniture in it. Then the suit that you seem to be banking after is placed in appropriate positions in this room, and you can see at a glance just how the bedroom or parlor or dining room will look if you buy that particular suit.

There are a dozen of these smaller rooms around the main showroom, and as each one is decorated in a different manner it is easy to pick one out that approximates the scheme of your room at home. Like many modern ways of selling goods it is expensive in the beginning, but it pays in the end, for this plan of showing goods seldom fails of its intended effect.—New York Press.

A Widow Who Was Calm.

A lawyer was entertaining dinner guests recently with stories from his personal experiences. "A woman came into my office one afternoon and said she wanted to see a lawyer on a rather important matter," he said. "She was very prim and self possessed."

"What can I do for you?" I asked. "Well," she said in an easy tone, "my husband was hurt in the wreck the other day."

"I noticed she was dressed in mourning, but from her indifferent tone I gathered that it had no connection with her husband's accident."

"Was your husband badly injured?" I asked. "Yes," she answered in the same quiet voice. "He got his head cut off."—Kansas City Times.

BALANCE IN THE AIR.

The Necessity For Equilibrium In Bird Flight.

It is likely that the bird's superb ease and grace in the air are due to its ability to maintain absolute balance. If a gull makes the mistake of bending until the wind strikes its head and wings on the top it will tumble instantly. And the sailing birds, though they make no flapping motion of their wings, are constantly balancing themselves, like a man on a tight rope. Some scientists have maintained that the air sacs make it possible for the bird to manage minute changes that are very valuable in restoring equilibrium. It is known that the wing is joined to the body of the bird by what is called a universal joint, enabling the creature to make almost every possible motion. The body of a man is heavier than water, but if he gets into a position of perfect balance he will float. In some such way, it is claimed, the bird floats in the air. But as the bird would fall much more rapidly in the air than a man's body would sink in water the necessity for a far more subtle ability to keep the center of gravity on the part of the bird is apparent; hence, according to this theory, the bird is provided for this purpose with the most sensitive equipment, made up of nerves and mysterious air ducts, many of the wing feathers perhaps acting as sentinels, warning instantly of the slightest approach of shifting currents.—Everybody's Magazine.

ENTERTAINING THE DUKE.

Rudely Interrupted While He Was Chatting With Royalty.

The daily papers do their best, but not even their ubiquitous representatives garner all the store of good things which attend a royal visit to Ireland, says the London Sketch. No paper at the time printed the cream of the stories which grew out of a visit of the Duke of Connaught to the Emerald Isle. "Welcome to Ireland!" said a man as he saw the duke on the steps of a hotel in the little western town in which he was staying. "Welcome to Ireland, your royal highness. I hope I see your royal highness well." "Quite well, thank you," answered the duke. "And your noble mother, the queen. I hope her old ladyship is enjoyin' the best of health?" "Yes, thank you," said the duke, vastly amused with the easy familiarity of the peasant. "It's glad I am to hear it. And tell me, your royal highness," the other went on, "how are all your noble brothers and sisters?" Before the duke could answer an aid-de-camp appeared, with, "Here, get along there." The peasant looked up with infinite scorn. "Arrah! What are yer interruptin' for?" he exclaimed. "Can't you see that me and his royal highness is houldin' a conversation?"

Explanation Was Necessary.

As the Pratt's dog was at last detached from the trousers leg of the new milkman by Mr. Pratt's vigorous efforts the victim of the onslaught began to express his mind with considerable freedom.

"I wouldn't keep a dog like that," he said indignantly, but Mr. Pratt broke in before he had time to say more. "He's only playful, that's all," he insisted, and at the same time he pressed something into the new milkman's hand.

The man glanced at the wad of green, and then as he transferred it to a safe pocket his expression changed. "I guess I can take a little fun as well as anybody," he said dryly. "But till you explained it I had a notion that dog was in earnest when he bit that piece out of my trousers."—Youth's Companion.

Seeing the Gights.

Even in these days of liberal education the young women sometimes show how confused are the ideas shut up in their heads. Illustrative of this is the native blunder which Edmondo de Amiel recounts in his story of a voyage from Genoa to Buenos Ayres:

The captain of the steamer which numbered the charming young blunderer among its passengers met her one morning and said:

"Signorina, we cross the tropic of cancer today."

"Oh, indeed?" she cried with enthusiasm. "Then we shall see something at last."

Curios.

Mr. Chow has a passion for curios, but was not able to distinguish a genuine article from a spurious one. One day a dealer came to him wishing to sell the lacquer bowl of Emperor Shun (B. C. 2255), the rod with which the Duke of Chow (about B. C. 1122) flogged Pak Kam, and the mat on which Confucius sat (B. C. 551). Mr. Chow sold all his worldly possessions and purchased them. Holding the bowl in his left hand, clutching the rod in his right hand and carrying the mat upon his back, he went around begging for a copper coin of King Woo (B. C. 1122).—From the Chinese.

His Scheme Worked All Right.

It is related that a certain man was recently very sad because his wife had gone out of town on a visit, which she would not shorten in spite of his appeals to her to come home. He finally hit upon a plan to induce her to return. He sent her a copy of each of the local papers with one item clipped out, and when she wrote to find out what it was he had clipped out he refused to tell her.

The scheme worked admirably. In less than a week she was home to find out what it was that had been going on that her husband didn't want her to know about.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional. The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is widely an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments. The "Night Cure," as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, causes nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. —A radical change is being made in the Adams Express office in Bellefonte. The old Roosevelt Club Room on Race street has been leased from Mrs. Bush; large double doors have been placed between the office and this room which will be used as a ware room, thus freeing the main office from anything like a congestion of express packages. The old counter seems to be put up, thus making the place look modern. Instead of the counter running east and west it will run north and south, giving them room to run a truck clean through to the new acquisition. When completed the patrons of the office will imagine they are in New York offices.

—A full grown wildcat jumped on the pilot of the Chicago and Western Express while the train was running through the mountainous region near Greensburg, the other day and clung to it until the Greensburg station was reached. When the train was brought to a standstill at the depot, a crowd rushed forward to the engine. The wildcat's claws were tightly fastened to the cowcatcher and when the crowd surrounded it, it began to purr softly. Then realizing danger was near it loosened its grip on the pilot and prepared to leap or fight. Steadily taking aim, a police officer fired wounding the cat, but not killing it, with a scream the animal leaped through the air, barely missing a bystander. Another bullet, just as the cat was starting up the rack killed it instantly.

—All chimneys should be examined before the cold weather sets in. Many are putting up their heaters now, so that the warming is timely. Some think because the chimney was cleaned when the water was taken down that there is no soot. This is a mistake for the reason that when it showers the water washes the soot to the bottom naturally accumulating to a large amount, so that when a fire is started the soot becomes heated and then it becomes necessary to sound the fire alarm. A little precaution in the manner may save such expense and inconvenience.

—John W. Peck, son of Dairyman F. L. Peck, who is a freshman at State College, and now champion middle weight of his class, last Friday evening took two successive falls out of his opponents, thus winning the middle weight match for the Freshies; and he should be credited with the college championship, having repeatedly thrown his coaches, and all the heavy weight contestants of his class. The remarkable feature of Peck's victory was, that after eighteen minutes' hard work, he threw his opponent with such force as to put him out of business. In the second heat a new man was put in against him. Though Peck was tired from his first hard battle, he went right after his fresh opponent, and after some quick and clever work, secured his favorite hold, and brought his victim over his shoulder, and threw him on his back in just 37 seconds, the record time of a wrestling match at State College. Mr. Peck is a promising candidate on the varsity foot ball squad.

SAD ACCIDENT ON THE MOUNTAINS.

Austin Watson Found Dead In the Muncy Mountains.

On Wednesday morning Austin Watson the 18 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Watson of Gum Stump went into the mountains to hunt and when he didn't return in the evening his parents grew anxious about him and started in search of the hunter. The father and brother traveled all over the mountains until day light and when they had just about concluded to go home for breakfast when again they would resume their hunt, they found the body of the young man cold in death. A horrible sight presented itself to the father when he went to where the boy was lying he discovered that the whole top of his head had been blown off. They carried the body home and prepared it for burial. The mother and father are nearly heart broken over the sad affair and we sincerely extend our deepest sympathy to them.

The funeral occurred on Sunday morning. The friends met at the house at 9 o'clock and proceeded to the United Brethren church where services were held at 10 o'clock.

Brockerhoff House Improvement.

The improvements at the Brockerhoff House are being completed and when finished Horton S. Ray, the proprietor, will have one of the most up-to-date hotels in this part of the state. On the second floor can be found two of the sweetest private bath rooms to be found in any public house. These are so conveniently located that they can be connected with either four rooms, or the bath can be used with separated rooms. These apartments have been furnished in the most elaborate style, and for the convenience of those who will occupy them. Mr. Ray intends to connect them with the outside world by telephone. The writing room is placed from the second floor to the first floor, in the room adjoining the office. It has tile floor, of a beautiful design, and papered and painted to suit the most fastidious taste. In the centre of the room is a large desk and along the sides will be placed several individual writing desks. The chairs will be upholstered and the surroundings will be made neat and cozy. A small portion of the room has been cut off by a low partition for a private office for the landlord. Other improvements will follow.

The reunion was the first of this family, but it will not be the last for the family will reunite at the home of Mrs. John Leech next summer. Plans are on foot to make this affair a much larger gathering. There were about thirty seated around the sumptuously laden table. All voted this gathering a huge success. Guess State Will Play at Williamsport.

Some space writer at State College, in a Philadelphia paper yesterday, had nothing to write about so he filled up with an article kicking on the treatment State received here on Saturday. Just what he has to kick about he does not say but as late as seven p. m., an hour before leaving the State College, Saturday, Manager Wright, of the State College team, was thoroughly satisfied with his treatment. The fellow who wrote that article must be some sorehead, who thinks he has a personal grievance. He certainly is someone who is not in authority and who is not close enough to the authorities to know anything about it or he would know that State has a contract to play the Indians here and the contract has two years yet to run.

About an hour afterwards he arrived at the fair grounds and was one of the most enthusiastic persons at the races.

To Drive Rats Away.

A Clinton street man says he rid his cellar of rats in a unique manner recently and has not been annoyed by these pests since. He lives in a double house and gave them food in his cellar to attract them. Then going to his neighbor's cellar he poured tar in every exit for the rodents. After this he returned to his own cellar when the rats scrambled in every direction and all were besmeared with tar. He says that this so angered them that they left the premises.
